Devotional Chants and Mantras

These chants and mantras have been aids in my own meditation and prayer; my intention is that they serve that purpose for you. Many of the chants may also be useful in group worship. Most of them “came to” me at various times over a period of years, from about 1992 to 2011, when the first edition was published. A handful of them came much later (2025-2026) and are included in this new edition.

It was quite a challenge to collect them from various pieces of paper lying about; often a chant would come to me at a time when I had no music paper handy, so I would quickly jot it down on whatever I could find.

The chants arose from and are wedded to their brief texts, most of which are original with me. Others you will find to be familiar from the Psalms and other writings of the Judeo-Christian tradition; some are based upon two well-known Buddhist mantra texts.

Accompaniment is certainly optional and may be helpful in some cases - especially in group singing. Some have a suggested one- or two-note drone. In fact I most often sing them without any accompaniment, and that is generally how they first came to me. At other times I merely speak the words.

I notated the chants in a range that was comfortable for me; you should choose a key or pitch range that is comfortable for you or your singers. Generally the chants are best sung in one's low to medium voice register. Several of the chants verge on being appropriate for a choir or soloist in a worship setting.

The chants are notated in several different ways. Some of them are more metrical and have time signatures. Others have no time signatures and one is written in a simplified chant notation. My approach in each chant was to notate it in manner that made the most sense at the time.

The repeats are completely ad libitum. Obviously much of the power of chanting comes from the repetition; experiment with what is comfortable for you.

You will find links to recordings of these chants on my web site: johnnewellmusic.com. I sincerely hope that you find them helpful in your own devotions or group worship.

1996

The text of this mantra is inspired by, and is a free translation of, the "Vajra Guru" mantra:

OM AH HUM VAJRA GURU PADMA SIDDHI HUM

This is the mantra of Padmasambhava, the master who brought the teachings of Buddhism to Tibet in the eighth century CE. Padmasambhava is regarded as the most important Tibetan master, and is often referred to as "Guru Rinpoche" (Precious Master). He is considered to be the direct emanation of the Buddha Amitabha (Buddha of Infinite Light).

The word vajra means diamond or thunderbolt, symbolizing power and indestructibility.

I was introduced to Buddhist thought and approach to life by the contemporary teacher Sogyal Rinpoche, through his work The Tibetan Book of Living and Dying. This book and its teachings inspired the composition of "Light of Heaven." The truths and aspirations embodied in the text lie at the heart of all the great religious traditions.

I composed a more extended choral work (SATB, soprano solo) based on this mantra; that piece became a movement of my cantata Children of the Light. Accompaniment for this mantra is optional. The full version of the choral setting can be found at my web site: johnnewellmusic.com

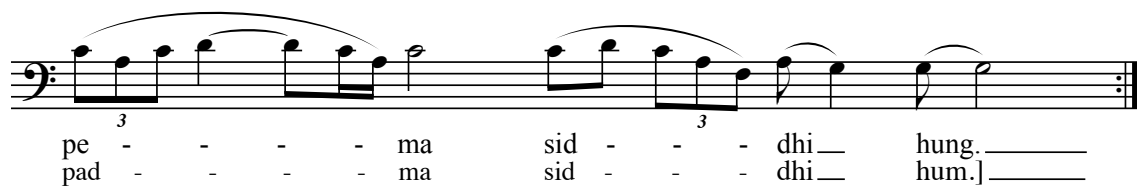

Vajra Guru Mantra

These are my original settings of the "Vajra Guru" mantra. I was inspired by a recording of mantras by the Rigpa Fellowship of Santa Cruz, California. In setting II the first line of lyrics is my approximation of the Tibetan pronunciation of the words. The second line (as well as the lyrics in setting I) is the traditional English transliteration of the pronunciation in Sanskrit.

Om Mani Padme Hum

The bodhisattva and meditational deity Avalokiteshvara is the embodiment of the compassion of all the buddhas. His mantra, "Om Mani Padme Hum," is perhaps the best known of all mantras in the Buddhist tradition; it is often called the "mantra of compassion." It is said that Avalokiteshvara looks with loving eyes upon all who suffer. He has vowed to work unceasingly for the liberation of all sentient beings, and to postpone his attainment of final buddhahood until all beings have become enlightened.

In his sorrow at the suffering of beings in samsara, Avalokiteshvara wept. Two tears fell from his eyes. Arising from his tears were the female deities Green Tara and White Tara. Green Tara (the "swift liberator") represents the active force of compassion in the world, working in many guises to relieve suffering and bring liberation to all beings. White Tara embodies the motherly aspect of compassion; she protects and brings long life in order to enable beings to progress along the path of enlightenment. These two mantras were composed in the early 1990s.

Peace Be With You

I.

Part I of the musical score for 'Peace Be With You'. It consists of two systems of music. The first system has a treble staff with a melody and a bass staff with a harmonic accompaniment. The melody starts on a C note, moves to G, then F, and ends on C. The lyrics 'Peace be with you.' are written below the treble staff. The second system continues the melody from the first system, starting on F, moving to C, then G, and ending on C. The lyrics 'Peace be with you.' are written below the treble staff. The bass staff continues the harmonic accompaniment.

Peace be with you. Peace be with you.

Peace be with you. Peace be with you.

Lord, I Lift Them Up to You

The musical score is written on five staves in treble clef. The melody is composed of eighth and quarter notes, with a key signature of one flat (Bb). Chords are indicated above the staff: C, FMaj7, and F. The lyrics are written below the staff, with line breaks corresponding to the musical phrases. The score includes a repeat sign at the beginning and end of the first line, and a final double bar line at the end of the fifth line.

Lord, I lift them up to You; en - fold them in the light of Your love. Lord, I lift them up to You; en - fold them in the light of Your grace. Heal them, com - fort them.
 Strength - en them, sus - tain them. Give them what they need for the jour - ney. Lord, I lift them up to You; en - fold them in the light of Your love.

September, 2010

This chant is an appropriate ending when you pray for others. Obviously you can substitute "him" or "her" for "them." Likewise, depending on the nature of the prayer, you can substitute other words, e.g. "help" or "bless."
